U. S. Foreign Service Leads Woods Sees It as One Hope

THE foreign service of the United States is the equal if not the superior of any in the world," said Cyrus E. Woods, former United States ambassador to Japan, in a recent address.

"I do not believe that the diplomatic service of any country can furnish a list of men of such great distinction as can the United States. It would not be possible for any country to keep permanently in its diplomatic employ so large a number of its distinguished leaders."

"I do not wish to be understood as opposing a trained diplomatic service, because I am very much in favor of it. It has been my pleasure to have associated with me some men in the regular service who were of marked ability and who were rendering distinguished service to their country."

"It is to be regretted that the American people do not take more interest in their foreign service. No department of the government is so little appreciated or so little understood."

"The problems of the world today are more complex than they have ever been before. By virtue of our economic and financial position, we are associated with these problems, and we are destined to play an important part in their solution."

Good Sense Is Equally Shared But We Don't All Act On It

RENE DESCARTES preached that good sense is, of all things among men, the most equally distributed—"for every one thinks himself so abundantly provided with it, that those even who are the most difficult to satisfy in everything else, do not usually desire a larger measure of this quality than they already possess."

And in this it is not likely that all are mistaken, he argues.

"The conviction is rather to be held as testifying that the power of judging aright and distinguishing Truth from Error, which is properly what is called Good Sense or Reason, is by nature equal in all men; and that the diversity of our opinions, consequently, does not arise from some being endowed with a larger share of Reason than others, but solely from this, that we conduct our thoughts along different ways, and do not affix our attention on the same objects."

It is easier to prove that the diversity of our opinions is due to the circumstance that some men are endowed with a larger share of reason than others, than to support Descartes' argument.

But the greatest minds, as they are capable of the highest excellencies, are open likewise to the greatest aberrations; and it is usually true that those who travel very slowly make for greater progress, provided they keep always to the straight road, than those who, while they run, forsake it.

It is true that the greatest minds are open likewise to the greatest aberrations.

It often happens that persons of noble character and great mental gifts betray a strange lack of worldly wisdom and a deficiency in the knowledge of men; with the result that it is easy to deceive or mislead them; and that, on the other hand, natures of the commoner sort are more ready and successful in making their way in the world.

The reason for this, it can be deduced, is that, when a man has little or no experience, he must judge by his own antecedent notions; and in matters demanding judgment, an antecedent notion is never on the same level as experience.

With the commoner sort of people, an antecedent notion means just their own selfish point of view.

This is not the case with those whose minds and characters are above the ordinary; and as they judge other people's thoughts by their own high standards, the results do not always tally with their calculations.

CHURCH NEWS

ATTEND SERVICES SUNDAY

CENTRAL EVANGELICAL

Francis A. Zeller, Minister.

Next Sunday will be a full day at Central Church. The Sunday School will convene at 9:45. The children will be addressed by some of the missionaries present with interesting stories.

At 11 o'clock the quarterly communion service will be conducted by Rev. A. J. Boelter, presiding elder of the California Conference. Mrs. Visel will sing. A good choir will lead the congregation and will render an anthem.

At 2:30 in the afternoon a big missionary rally will be held. This will be a great gathering. Six foreign missionaries with their wives and families will be present. The speaker of the afternoon will be Dr. E. H. Brunemeyer, who has served for some years as a medical missionary at Tungking, Kweichow, China. He has an exceedingly interesting story to tell of his work there. A year and a half ago his co-laborer, Dr. E. W. Schmalzried, was captured by Chinese bandits and held for some time for ransom.

Dr. Brunemeyer and his wife and children are on their way back to their work. Rev. I. R. Dunlap of the Lilling, China, Mission will also speak. He has spent 15 years in the Sunrise Kingdom as a missionary and has seen much change there. He and his family are returning to China. Many out-of-town visitors will be present to hear these speakers.

In the evening at 7:30 Rev. and Mrs. John W. Stauffacher, missionaries from British East Africa, will tell of their work in the Dark Continent. They will use quite a number of stereopticon slides in illustrating or showing the people and their customs and way of living. The people of the Christian Church will join with us in the evening service.

The Christian Endeavor service at 8:30 will be of unusual interest. Rev. E. J. Nickel of Santa Ana, president of the California Branch of the Evangelical Church C. E., will be present and will address the gathering. Miss Freda Schroeder of Santa Ana, vice-president of the Orange County Union of the C. E., will be present and will have a place on the program. The meeting will be in charge of W. E. Bowen of Torrance, who is vice-president of the Los Angeles County C. E. Union. Visitors from Los Angeles, Long Beach, Anaheim, Santa Ana and other points will be present. The public is invited to attend any or all of the services of the day.

First Methodist Frederick M. Essig, Pastor. Residence at church. Sunday School, 9:45 a. m. TOWNE ALKE

"Just for Fun" By RAS BERRY

We goes up to Lake Arrowhead with a couple that has been wed 23 yrs. and when folks has been married that long why they growl at each other plenty especially when they is lots of traffic and one of the couple is driving and the other is in the back seat and so they kinda kept bawling each other out and finally it was agreed that before either one of them growls at the other why before he or she growled he or she would count fifteen and that went along pretty good until the husband who was driving tried to pass a car and pretty near got in a collision and his wife forgets and says For the love of Mike drive more careful and the husband he says one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, Am shut up.

I ain't gonna say who this here couple is but the husband he is a supt. at the Tool and the lady is a dentist up to L. A.

I can't let another week go by without kicking it to Kitty who is writing Huddleston's advs. in the paper under the caption of I says to Hudd. Kitty is Mrs. Hudd and she sure writes a nifty adv.

Dr. Bob Hoag and Jack Hanson was down to Coronado over Sunday and they took a tent in Tent City on recommendation of Jawn McMillan and they stayed in this tent just a short time because Jack he says they is so far from headquarters that the bell hops used bicycles to get to them and when they ordered ice water why by the time the bell hop had crossed the hot sands to their tent the water was so hot they boiled eggs in it. After that they moved to a hotel in San Diego.

Bob he says they strolls over to the dance hall and they was five couples dancing on the floor and he guesses the crowd must of all been down to Tia Juana studying economic conditions in Mexico.

Well Jawn McMillan and his family is having their vacation down there and on the way down Jawn forgets he is on his vacation and thinks he is delivering a rush order for a piece of oil well supplies because one of them bozes that wears grey suits and rides motorcycles presented Jawn with a slip that says you gotta tell it to the judge. And after that Jawn had another blow out, only the second time it was a tire. No-buddy was hurt.

Well the other day I goes in to the bank and I says just like that I guess I'll pay this here note and they run right away from the desk and lock the door which don't surprise me none even though I think it is only half past two instead of 3 o'clock.

A situation that give me a chuckle was a man from Flint watching the young gals sparring with their beaux up at Arrowhead.

Claude Mackenzie says this living on a diet of soup is all the bunk and he sure is gonna have plenty of company in when he gets his new store teeth.

The city dads is represented by a team in the bowling league only the only city dad left on the team is Bob Deinger for the rest has all quit and you can believe it or not but the other night the city dads team win a game.
